"Ich Dien" "I Serve"

The proud yet humble motto of a member of the Royal Family. To day thousands upon thousands of our young men are enrolling under the great banner; proud to serve Canada in her hour of need. Watch the womanfolk of your community. Forgotten are their bridge parties and formal social activities. They are busy day by day working energetically for the Red Cross, and other kindred societies, they're proudly adopting this motto as their own.

I am now appealing to the men in our town and district surrounding it. Join your local Board of Trade as only by well organized effort can you do something worth while, not only in our community, but in the greater effort to help our country today.

Every man has some small talent or wishful thought; that if converted into practical use, will help make your town and the community surrounding it a better place to live in. This is the start of a New Year. Join up and help the present needs of your board of trade for years have been proud to work under the great motto "I serve."

Old Note—The above article was prepared for publication by a member of the Bassano Board of Trade serving on the Membership Committee for 1941. We can only add our own encouragement to citizens of the Town and District to support the organization one hundred per cent in the coming year.

The Rowell-Sirois Report

The following are two further articles on the Rowell-Sirois Commission Report, prepared for the Recorder by Mr. T. B. Windsor, Journalist, of Edmonton. The first two articles of the series of five were published in a recent issue of this newspaper, and the fifth and concluding article will be published next week.

— Article No. 3 —

Substantial benefits will accrue to Alberta if recommendations of the Rowell-Sirois Commission are implemented. Provincial authority in various fields will be strengthened and clarified, but the major benefits are financial in character. These are:

(1) There will be marked improvement in the financial position of the province (on the basis of 1937 figures, the province will have a clear surplus of $2.5 millions.

(2) On the basis of full payment of interest on Alberta bonds, the gain to the provincial government is $2.6 millions. Big succession duties in 1937 were $1 million higher than normal and no provision was made for sinking funds (formerly $700,000). Adjustment for these items increases the financial advantage to the Alberta Government to $5.3 millions.

(3) Municipalities will be relieved of relief expenditures which cost them over $1 million in 1937. On the basis of 1937 figures the municipalities will have a surplus of $15 millions, or roughly 7 1/2% of their expenditures.

(4) Alberta's education and welfare services could be restored to depression levels and at the same time real estate taxation could be reduced.

(5) Adjustment of the default on Alberta bonds, refunding of the provincial debt and restoration of the credit of the province would be achieved.

Considerable importance is attached by the Commission to the restoration of Alberta's credit since in its view, the present lack of credit is hampering Alberta's economic progress. The report points out that the outlook for Alberta is promising and that the province is still at the stage when, under normal conditions, one would expect large scale capital investment and rapid expansion.

In this connection the report states "Because of the possibilities which exist to increase income and welfare generally in Alberta if new capital investment is made, it is of common concern to re-establish Alberta's credit and to provide conditions which will inspire investors with confidence."

There is another financial advantage to which Alberta should not be overlooked. No longer will the province and municipalities be hampered with relief costs. Moreover, the provincial government will be assured of sufficient revenue to give additional help to municipalities and to maintain its services at the average level for Canada even in times of depression.

A subsidiary proposal of the commission which is of interest to the people of Alberta is that dealing with marketing legislation. Present jurisdiction over marketing is far from clear and in the past there has been a great deal of confusion as to the jurisdiction. Neither the Dominion or provincial governments have been able to deal efficiently with it. The commission suggests concurrent jurisdiction which would leave with the provinces control of marketing of products entering into local consumption, whereas Dominion legislation with marketing of commodities entering largely into inter-provincial and foreign trade. A suitable alternative to this, the report suggests, would be to create a power for the Dominion and a province to delegate full authority one to the other to legislate concerning certain phases of marketing.

Article 4

A direct and immediate result of implementation of the Rowell-Sirois report will be lower municipal taxes on real estate.

One of the major recommendations of the commission provides for the assumption by the Dominion Government of the entire cost of relief to unemployment employables. This item alone, on the basis of 1937 figures, would mean a saving to municipalities throughout Canada of $20 millions, or 8 per cent of the real property tax.

The saving to Alberta municipalities is slightly over $1 million, or 7 1/2 per cent of their total expenditures. But this is not the only assistance to municipalities contemplated by the report. True, the commission makes no other proposal for direct assistance to municipalities, since the latter are under the exclusive jurisdiction of the provinces. However, its recommendations were devised to put the provinces in a financial position to render greater aid to municipalities. In this connection it suggests that the provincial governments might make large grants to municipalities or assume a larger part of the cost of those education and welfare services now shared with the municipalities.

Adoption of the report would improve the budget position of the Alberta Government. On the basis of 1937 figures the province would have a clear surplus of $2.5 millions which it could use to restore education and welfare services to the 1929 level, to give greater assistance to municipalities would have as a result of being relieved of the cost of aid to the unemployed.

Not only would there be an immediate financial gain to municipalities and the real estate taxpayer, but benefits would accrue to them in the future. Unemployment may again develop on a large scale in the period of readjustment following the war. But, if the Eastern Canada's greatest winter playground is a thinly populated stretch of mountains country north of Montreal which has facilities for skiing surpassing anything found east of the Canadian Rockies. Alternatives For Payment Land Contracts

(1) Crop Payment Plan

In some districts in Alberta such a plan is very in effect. A fixed share of all crops belong to the District each year.

The share is usually higher for grains and hay than for roots such as potatoes and beets.

Collections are made through the elevators as is the practice in the
S. I. D.

The proceeds of the Districts crop share are usually applied as follows:

1st on Irrigation Rates.

2nd on Interest on Land Payments.

3rd on Principal of Land Pay-
ments.

If the crop share is not enough
to pay water rates the difference
must be made up in cash.

If the crop share is more than enough to pay water rates the balance is applied on the land. There is no fixed amount available each year on land.

When the amount allotted to land
each year is enough to pay the land contract title issue.

Contracts would, of course, be subject to cancellation in any case
where reasonable amount was not produced to apply on land principals over periodic check-up intervals.

(2) Crop Share Payment

On land alone.

As it is recognized that water
must be paid in full and the possibility of a modified crop share
plan suggests itself.

The proposal would be similar to
No. (1) except that the water rates
would be payable in cash and a fixed share of crop would be turned in on land each year.

(3) Bunches of Wheat

This proposal is that a fixed number of bushels of wheat would be turned in each year. The proceeds of sale of this wheat would be applied on payment for land.

Where a man was not growing wheat he would turn in the equivalent in value in cash or in some other product.

There would be no definite
amount of and payment due in any year.

Whatever amount was realized
would be applied on land payment.
When the total paid up the contract, title would be issued.

Water rates would be payable in
full in cash.

(4) Sliding Scale of Land Payments Based on the Price of Wheat

This proposal contemplates adjusting the amount of the regular land payment each year in accordance with the price of wheat.

If wheat were $1.00 per bushel
the full regular land payment would be required.

If wheat were 50c a bushel no
land payment would be required.
Land payments would be reduced proportionately for wheat prices
between $1.00 and 50c or increased proportionately for wheat prices
over $1.00.

Water rates always payable in
full in cash.

Under any of the above proposals the trustees would be permitted to exercise discretion regarding the cancellation of interest on land payments as they have done
in the past.

It is proposed that the ballot shall contain a voting space for those who are opposed to any change in the form of contract.
